> That the expected onslanght on the present system of Government hung fire at the most ing of the "Odd Volumes" may perhaps be taken as indicating that after all there is not very much discontent with things as they are. General Cameron I think it was who said he had never been in a plane where there was so little interference with personal liberty as in Hongkong. Absence of interference with persons liberty is no doubt conducive to content. especially amongst a well-to-do community such is the Europeans in Hongkong constitute, and here we are free from the distressing problems towns and rural districts in Europe have to face. This it is, perhaps, which accounts for the want of public spirit that Mr. Francis referred to on Thursday. Things might be made very much better for the community as a whole, and the standard of life amongst the Chinese as regards health, comfort, and cleanliness might be raised, by the establishment of municipal institutions; but since the Europeans are here only for a longer or shorter term of years and find themseives fairly comfortable in their individual sur roundings, the inclination on their part to agitate for public reforms is not very keen.

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

Some examples of the marvellous influence that traces of foreign substance may exert upon chemical change have been collected by a writer in Science. Mr. H. B. Baker proved in 1887 and 1888 that carbon, sulphur, or phosphorus may be strongly heated in dry oxygen without taking fire, although vigorous combustion takes place i the slightest moisture be present. Our household fires would probably be impossible in the ab ence | floor coverings, etc. of aqueous vapour. A trace of moisture is necessary to other combinations, asdrychlorias and dry metallic sedium do not unite, and a mixture of carbon monoxide and oxygen, or of ethylene and exygen, can only by exploded when slightly moist. Mr. W. H. Veley has lately shown that the violent action of nitric acid on many metals is due to slight impurity. Copper, silver mercury or bismuth may be immersed in th time without affect, out the addition or a trace of nitrous soid-even so small as 1 or 2 barts in 10,000 -causes the metal to be rapidly dissolved. Pure sine will not dissolve in pure hyl cohlorio or sulphuricacid, while the relation is quickly set up in the presence of metallic salt. Hussey has added that 1000 part of autimony about a square foot of space. will convert the best copper into the worst conceivable. Very slight variations in the proportion of carbon change the character and value of steel, and a trace of bismuth or lead wou render gold usel as for coinage on account

The question of the comparative strength and stature of men of the Roman period and those of the present day is about to receive light from an unexpected source. In the Alpine commune of Bovegno an old silver mine has been uncovered by an English mining company, and at the bottom of the shaft were found many skeletons of men of almost gigantic build. The mine seems to have been worked by the Roman hill tribes, a party of whom were buried alive a landslide. The bones have been preserved for Researches of Suchsland show that the process if "sweating" to which tobacco leaves are subjected in preparing them for use gives rise to fermentative changes that are not due to purely chemical action, as has been supposed, but are effected by micro-organisms. The species vary in different kinds of tobacco. But what is most important is that pure cultures of the bacteria have been made and with them it has been found to be possible to transfer the peculiar inste and aroma of one kind of tobacco to It may not have been quite dead, but there was another kind, and thus to raise the quality of inferior grades. The Cuban hemp is admirably adapted for cordage.

It is impossible to avoid getting these insects upon you, and when one comes in contact with the skin he inserts his proboscis till his head and shoulders are buried out of sight. The insertion gives no pain, but after he has got well into place your attention is attracted by a tickling which informs you that he is there. He must be removed or he will cause a disgreeable sure. As his laucet is barbed, the operation of withdrawing him is like that of pulling a tooth or extracting the quill of a porcupine.

There were at tigers in the neighbourhood of Siligori, but we had reports of panthers which had been carrying off cattle near Karacong. So we went up the road which leads to Darjacling till we reached the locality where the latest panther had been seen lie was said to be a large one and just the sort we wanted, and so we made arrangements to hant him up. The panther we were after had carried off bullook only the evening before our arrival is the vicinity of a village about two miles from Karseong. He was certainly a powerful beast, as he dragged the bullook to the eage of a forest a quarter of a mile from where he pounced upon him. He had devoured a portion of the carosss and it was thought he would return, accompanied by his family, within twenty-four hours. It was not positively known that he was a husband and father, but marriages are the rule among the quadruped as well as among the biped natives of India, and so there was good reason to believe in the existence of Mrs. Panther and some juvenile panthers.

Accompanied by our shikerry and several attendants whom we employed in the village we went to the spot and built a mychan in a position which commanded the position where the coroses lay and within easy shooting distance of it. A myoban is a platform of ther standing on post of in the fork of a free. A MULIONAIRE'S GRAVE," &c., &c. CHAPTER XXXVII. A SCHANGE SAIL IN THE OFFING.

Owing to the prominence which professions writers have for many years been giving to that quondam terra incognila, the islands of the South Paville, there are for fewer now that are roally uninhabited, and on many of them may be found white men, bermits, or call them Crusoes, if the name seems more romantic. It would take a long time to describe the different reasons that have driven these men into voluntary exile. The lave of a lonely existence is one not uncommon factor, disappointment in life another, but there are many, many more; fugitives from their country's laws, for instance. often become Crusoos, while others live by the green lagoons of the sunny South Pacific for the sake of making money.

Augustus Carey and his brother Ralph belongie latter class—the two men who led the deroe fight with the head-hunters last chapter.
